

Real Estate

Sales & Management Training

ONE ON ONE MANAGEMENT

Rather than allowing yourself to be interrupted all the time control your day and help staff in structured and simple way in only a few minutes a week. There will always be times you have to help then and there but not all the time if you run structured communication with your staff.

The number one complaint of staff is that they are not listened to or that they never have the boss's attention. We will introduce you to a world of better communication with your staff but more importantly better time management.

By the way because you talk to your staff during the day doesn't mean you are hearing them.